This course continues to develop and refine ethical fashion practices addressing circularity in the fashion supply chain. Students will gain comprehensive and measurable insights into the industry's impacts on human rights, labor conditions, environmental responsibility, animal welfare, supply chain transparency, and the effects of consumer behavior. Upon successful completion of this course, students will have the knowledge to question their production and design choices, an awareness of the impacts of those choices, and a mindfulness to address ways to improve the fashion industry.
