

CCT 2100 - INTERPERSONAL COMMUNICATION

Credits: 3

In this sophomore-level course, students explore human interaction and processes by which emotions, information, and meaning are exchanged through both verbal and nonverbal communication through various interpersonal relationships, problems, and situations. Lectures, presentations, readings, discussions, exercises, and written essays analyze the theoretical issues of self-concept and perception as they are affected by verbal and nonverbal communication. Upon successful completion of this course, students will demonstrate an understanding of the basic theory, ethics, principles, practices, and skills of interpersonal communication. Furthermore, they will comprehend the role human communication plays in the development and maintenance of social structures.

Prerequisites: EN 1110 - Composition I

Course Learning Outcomes:	Exceeding	Meeting	Developing	Not meeting	Program Outcomes	Institutional Outcomes
Understand the basic theories, ethics, principles, practices, and skills of interpersonal communication.	Analyzes Identifies the basic theories, ethics, principles, practices, and skills of interpersonal communication.	Applies Identifies the basic theories, ethics, principles, practices, and skills of interpersonal communication.	Identifies the basic theories, ethics, principles, practices, and skills of interpersonal communication.	Does not understand the basic theories, ethics, principles, practices, and skills of interpersonal communication.	LA 1, LA4, LA5, LA6, LA10	Critical Thinking
Understand the role human communication plays in the development and maintenance of social structures.	Analyzes the role human communication plays in the development and maintenance of social structures.	Applies the role human communication plays in the development and maintenance of social structures.	Identifies the role human communication plays in the development and maintenance of social structures.	Does not understand the role human communication plays in the development and maintenance of social structures.	LA4, LA5, LA6	Communication Competence Critical Thinking